DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Information Disclosure Statement

The information disclosure statements (IDSs) submitted on 4/1/04, 8/5/04, 12/2/05 and 11/8/06 have been considered by the examiner.

Specification

The substitute specification filed 12/2/05 has not been entered because it does not conform to 37 CFR 1.125(b) and (c) because: a proper marked-up copy of the substitute specification with changes/additions has not been provided. Note the substitute specification lacks many of the compound structure formulas of the originally filed specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Helms et al., US 5,100,523.

Helms teaches an electroactive polymer coated conductive substrate that can be used to prepare an electrochemical device such as a battery (1:30-44). The conductive substrate may be a metal, glass, quartz or a plastic (3:60-4-9). The electroactive polymer (organic compound) may be produced from a monomer of thiophene or 3-methylthiophene (5:3-12). The adhesion of the electroactive polymer film to the conductive substrate having a layer of amorphous carbon thereon is substantially greater than the adhesion of the identical polymer film to an uncoated conductive substrate. The amorphous carbon promotes the adhesion between the electroactive polymer and the conductive substrate by covalent (C-C) bonding the occurs between the polymer and the carbon (5:43-54). Thus the claims are anticipated.

Art Unit: 1745

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b)/103(a) as being anticipated by, and alternatively unpatentable over, Helms et al., US 5,100,523.

Helms teaches an electroactive laminate comprising a conductive substrate, a first layer of an electroactive polymer prepared from a first monomer and a second layer of an electroactive polymer prepared from a second monomer (3:1-14). The electroactive polymer may be thiophene or a derivative of thiophene (5:46-56). The conductive substrate is preferably metal or metal oxide coated glass (5:7-9). Thus the claims are anticipated.

The claims are alternatively unpatentable. Helms does not explicitly state the first electroactive polymer and the substrate are adhered via a covalent bond, however, this limitation is considered inherent in the teachings of Helms. The electroactive polymer and conductive substrate appears to be the same materials of the claimed invention. Thus it appears the electroactive polymer and conductive substrate of the prior art would have contained a covalent bond there between.
